CONSCIOUS JEWELRY BY DANNA WEISS'S AMETHYST SIGNATURE

NECKLACE, which can be worn four different ways. Or you can order a more affordable single-stone pendant (necklace, $455; pendant, $48.63; consciousjewelry.com).

REBEKAH GREEN'S CHERRY STEM STUDS

are made from 100 percent recycled 14K yellow gold and fairly traded gemstones—plus they're manufactured with minimal carbon footprint and chemicals. Five percent of proceeds benefit Global Green USA ($50; rebekahgreen.com).

TIFFANY KUNZ'S CLOVER RING is made from petite rough stones and recycled, fairly traded metal, and no harsh chemicals.

The designer donates her time and talent to Raven + Lily, a nonprofit design studio dedicated to empowering impoverished women ($40; tiffanykunz.com).

Handmade from recycled molten gold and ethically mined stones,

CHRISTINE MIGHION'S 14K GOLD LOTUS PETAL AND TANZANITE

HOOPS are individually hammered, which produces one-of-a-kind pieces. A percentage of proceeds is donated to Project Foundation ($610; nemighion.com).

Great for layering, ORIJYN'S MUANG PAK-LAY 18" SILVER NECKLACE is handcrafted by artisans in Laos and based on the Dok Phikoun flower, originally reserved for the Royal Court since it was believed to bring good fortune. All proceeds help support a sustainable culture and community in low-income Laotian villages ($190; orijyn.com). —Amanda Altman is made with hypoallergenic palladium (instead of irritating nickel) and is available in ethically sourced 14K gold, 14K rose gold and sterling silver. The philanthropic company works closely with Much Love Animal Rescue ($165–$180; nolanla.com).
